

Breaking Free: A Collection of Poems

Breaking Poem

i break like an egg and slosh my guts golden i become like stone a thousand years hard and i break in the middle of a note i shatter like a thousand shop windows at once i cry out sheer obsidian diamond-eyed i break along plinth lines of poetry and self tradition grips me but i break with it the hospital takes me but i break like a fly out of blue webbing like a beak through blue eggshell i break with society with company with poetry i'm a chain and i break i'm a spell and i break i'm a wave and i break on a ruined shore i'm pieces and i just keep breaking into more i break like a rock in rage snapped like celluloid burned right through a black hole raw like cannon shot like thought patterns scattered in rings of hate i break up the band i break up my parents i break up my ancestors i scatter them into klans into tribes into gangs i break like someone with a child who gets rough in public i shatter my trust my bond i break my word your word all words i bust them up and i throw them down and scatter them i break open like a seed and seeds break open in me full of seeds exploding with seeds that smash atoms in shockwaves all around me a dawn that shouldn't come a faith you couldn't shake I'm a guaranteed worldwide bank and i break i'm the amniotic rim of night and i break and light comes bursting in and i come shattering out battering out face first crystalline i break with matter with spirit i splinter off diamond-eyed my heart breaks open wide and i cry but it just shatters me more and more
