Now considered a classic among readers interested in Tibetan Buddhism and pilgrimages of the spirit of all kinds, A Journey in Ladakh is Andrew Harvey's. "A Journey in Ladakh" is a remarkable pilgrimage of the spirit and an arduous physical journey to a remote part of the world - the highest, most sparsely populated region in India, cut off by snow for six months each year. Buddhists have meditated in the mountains of Ladakh since the third century before Christ, and it is there that the purest form of Tibetan Buddhism is still practiced today. A Journey in Ladakh is one of the seminal works relating landscape and spirituality in regard to Tibetan Buddhism. Andrew Harvey illumines, entertains, and informs, as always." — Robert Thurman, Columbia University "Even the most blemished readers will feel that they could improve their spirituality without really trying if they spent more time in Ladakh." — Martin Amis "The spiritual journey is connected at every point by the geographical . . . He is made poignantly aware of the vulnerability of Ladakh, in which an ancient, peaceful culture, dominated by the great monasteries, is threatened by the encroaching Westernization of the world." — New York Times Book Review "Harvey's story stands with Matthiessen's The Snow Leopard and Rick Fields's How the Swans Came to the Lake as one of the best books available on the Western experience of Tibetan spiritual life." — New Age Journal ANDREW HARVEY was born in southern India in 1952. He has written and edited more than thirty books, including The Direct Path: Creating a Journey to the Divine Using the World's Mystical Traditions and The Tibetan Book of Living and Dying.
